

LATIN AMERICAN AND CARIBBEAN STUDIES (HBA)

Department of Historical Studies

Latin American and Caribbean Studies offers an exploration of Latin America and the Caribbean and their diasporas, drawing on a range of disciplinary approaches. Through diverse course offerings, students can study Latin American and Caribbean history, languages, politics, societies, cultures, religions and geographies. The program is geared toward building an engagement with the region(s) as well as with their communities in Canada and the United States. Students may take courses, offered by a number of departments, that focus on Latin America and the Caribbean. As a complement to the student's other chosen programs, the Minor in Latin American and Caribbean Studies can prepare students for careers in a competitive global context in which the greater part of the Western Hemisphere plays an increasingly important role.

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR TIME AT UTM!

We want to help you maximize your university experience, so we've pulled together information and interesting suggestions to get you started, although there are many more! As you review the chart on the inside pages, note that many of the suggestions need not be restricted to the year they are mentioned. In fact, activities such as joining an academic society, engaging with faculty and seeking opportunities to gain experience should occur in each year of your study at UTM. Read through the chart and create your own plan using My Program Plan found at www.utm.utoronto.ca/program-plans

HIS290H5: Introduction to Latin American History — Most history courses start in the deep past and end in the present. This one is different. We start in our era and work backward to the year 1491. This reverse chronology is organized around crucial turning points in Latin American history, from Mexico to Argentina, Cuba to Brazil. We examine what happened as well as the other available options that were rejected at the time.

FUTURE STUDENTS

Admission to UTM

All program areas require an Ontario Secondary School Diploma, or equivalent, with six Grade 12 U/M courses, or equivalent, including English. The admission average is calculated with English plus the next best five courses. The approximate average required for admission is mid- to high-70s. More information is available by accessing the Viewbook.

NOTE: During the application process, applicants will select the Humanities admissions category, but will not officially be admitted to a formal program of study (Specialist, Major, and/or Minor) until after first year.

Sneak Peek

SPA235H5: Music and Dance in Hispanic Culture — This course explores the heritage and modern manifestations of various Latin American, Caribbean, and Spanish musical styles and their accompanying dance forms. The course is organized thematically and geographically and is taught in English.

HIS494H5: Reading and Writing about the Individual in History — This course takes up the age-old question about the relationship between the individual and society. The instructor teaches each step in the process of conducting historical research, and students read outstanding biographies and write an original biography.
